OPENING FALL 2000

There's a good reason the word Living is in our name.

© copyright 2000, University Assisted Living, LLC

The last things most people conjure up when they think about assisted living is actually enjoying or staying connected to life.

But that's just where University Living is different.

You see, at University Living, we believe that even though you have arrived at an age where you may need some level of assistance – that you haven't stopped being interested in the world around you. That's why we're building a place where keeping your mind and spirit engaged with life is just as important as providing the very best physical care and attention.

Forged in a unique partnership with The University of Michigan, University Living will be a community where residents will be able to attend lectures and discussion groups, enjoy art, music, hobbies, theater—even learn to use the internet and e-mail. New technologies will bring a renewed sense of enjoyment to reading and listening to music, while gee-wiz video conferencing will keep you connected with friends and family between visits.

And University Living is open to everyone - not just those who have attended or are in some way connected to The University of Michigan.

So, if you're evaluating assisted living options, consider the only one where you'll find a genuine passion for helping its residents continue to engage in life: University Living.

LETTER FROM THE MAYOR

Welcome!

to the 41st Ann Arbor Art Fair!

Each summer, more than one thousand artists from around the country come to Ann Arbor to exhibit and sell their work at the Ann Arbor Art Fair. Whether your interest is in baskets, pottery, jewelry, paintings, photography, or sculpture, you'll be sure to find an artist's work to fascinate and inspire you. I encourage you to express your thoughts to the artists when a piece delights or intrigues you—you will find them most eager to discuss their work.

Some first-time visitors to the Ann Arbor Art Fair get confused because it actually is three separate, concurrent fairs—the Street Art Fair, the State Street Area Art Fair, and the Summer Art Fair. Together, they make up one of the most exciting and dynamic celebrations of visual arts in the nation.

The Ann Arbor Art Fair offers the experience of an informal, open-air art gallery with free musical performances and a vast variety of food offerings. Over the past forty-one years, the fair has nurtured and supported the careers of thousands of artists and has been a vital part of the economic and cultural life of the city. Whether you are here for the art, the music, the food, or the ambience, I welcome you to the fair and hope you will come back again soon to enjoy the many other unique cultural events offered in the Ann Arbor area.

Sincerely,

Ingrid B Sheldon

New Artists for a New Millennium

Many artists and art collectors consider the Ann Arbor Art Fairs to be one of the top two or three outdoor art events in the nation. The fairs are so prestigious—and can be so lucrative—that some artists try for literally their entire careers to get in. Some never make it.

Many fairgoers have favorite artists whom they visit and buy from each summer. But this year we wanted to look at a group of artists who've never exhibited in Ann Arbor before. All have unique stories to tell of the struggle to develop their work and to make a living as an artist. Chris Zema got here by accident—an injury had ended his career as a carpenter. Tom Haney and Marie Wohadlo were juried in on their first attempts, while Jill Elizabeth waited twelve years to get into "the granddaddy of all shows." Whatever you think of their art, you have to admire them for their resourcefulness and determination.

Sculptor
Tom Haney
Mr. Oddball makes it big

If you don't see Tom Haney's work at the fair, you'll have a second chance this fall: "Mr. Oddball," one of the Atlanta artist's keyboard-activated marionettes, is slated to appear on Bette Midler's CBS sitcom Bette.

How'd Mr. Oddball end up there? Los Angeles art dealer Pattee Stayrook, in Atlanta for the 1996 Olympics, spotted the bald, business-suited, cowboy-booted wooden man in the window of Haney's downtown studio. The figure is carved in a style that recalls old-timey toys and hints at Haney's longtime love of folk art, which he collects. Haney says his artworks "look as if somebody made them fifty or seventy-five years ago, before TV and video games, and then stashed them away till today."

Charmed by the piece, Stayrook asked Haney to make a copy (he wouldn't sell the original) and took it to the set of the popular TV sitcom Friends. Intended to grace the bedroom of Chandler (Matthew Perry), the work wasn't used as planned. Perry, intimately attuned to his character, protested that Chandler would never own that type of art. The piece mysteriously vanished, but Stayrook, undeterred, subsequently commissioned another copy of Mr. Oddball for Bette.

Meeting Stayrook was pure luck, but the thirty-seven-year-old Haney's TV ties go way back. After graduating with a degree in design from the University of Cincinnati in 1985, Haney stayed in town and made props for advertisers and still photographers. Moving to Atlanta in 1992, he built sets for commercials and for trial commercials that ad agencies wanted to test-market. After Haney helped with a promo project for Perry Mason Mysteries, the production head recommended him to Barry Mills, writer-producer of Rudy & Go-Go's World Famous Cartoon Show. Haney created the show's puppet hosts, marionettes Rudy and JB. "It was fun—I've always liked making things that move," Haney recalls.

He also likes antique automata—devices that can move independently via concealed mechanisms, such as a windup bird that sings. "I find [automata] fascinating because they were made purely for the purpose of entertainment," Haney says—just like his own marionettes.

The marionettes are rooted in the garden whirligigs Haney sold at art shows nationwide beginning in 1993. At one 1994 Washington State show, he was fascinated by artist-surgeon Ben Thal's wind-animated human figures.

Returning from the show with the idea of art that incorporates animation, Haney began creating figures in a folk-art style. Instead of using wind power, the figures' limbs are controlled by a keyboard that viewers "play." Each one takes Haney seventy-five to a hundred hours to make and costs $2,000 to $3,000 or more.

Mr. Oddball's date with Bette this fall isn't Haney's only recent success. The Street Art Fair is highly selective, and it's not uncommon for artists to apply repeatedly before landing a slot. But Mr. Oddball and the rest of Haney's charismatic marionettes won admission on their first try.

Fiber Artist
Marie Wohadlo
Photographic quilts

Marie Wohadlo grew up in Port Huron, Michigan, in a farm family that learned frugality in the Great Depression. Until the day she died, Wohadlo's grandmother darned socks rather than buying new ones. Family members made their own clothing, decorations, gifts, curtains, and Halloween costumes.

Wohadlo's mother once even made her a shawl out of old kitchen towels. Though it made Wohadlo the focus of a lot of teasing and cruelty at school, the shawl provided much comfort to her. "It was warm and fuzzy, like terry cloth towels," she remembers.

Like many women of her generation, Wohadlo's mother also sewed quilts from squares of old clothing. Wohadlo took this skill she had learned from her mother and went on to invent a new art form—photographic quilts.

Wohadlo says she spent six years refining her secret process for putting photographic images on fabric. "I don't use [conventional] transfer methods," she explained. "Commercial transfer papers add a binder to the fabric and ruin the feel of the fabric. My pieces feel like any other fiber."

Wohadlo studied art at the University of Michigan, graduating with a B.F.A. in 1989. While a student she began experimenting with stitching photographs together, but was "disappointed by how paper begins to fall apart if you punch it with a needle too many times."

In 1991 Wohadlo moved to Chicago and worked as a graphic artist. One day a friend there saw a photo collage Wohadlo had made on her apartment wall out of junk-mail flyers and told her, "Marie, you need to put this on fabric." The casual comment launched Wohadlo's development of photographic quilts.

To make her quilts, Wohadlo first uses her special process to transfer images from vintage photographs to squares of fabric. She stitches the pieces together using patchwork, appliqué, and embroidery techniques. Many of the photographs she uses are from her family album. The quilt Good Luck, for example, is a collage of photographs of her father when he was in the army. The sepia tones of old black-and-white photographs dominate the quilt's center, bordered by bright combinations of flowery fabric. The overall effect is almost like experiencing a snippet of memory itself, a black-and-white intrusion on our present-day Technicolor world.

Wohadlo has been selling her art primarily through galleries, where smaller quilt blocks fetch about $50 and up. Larger pieces, typically three to four feet square, can cost $800 to $1,200 or more. But because her volume is limited, she hasn't been able to support herself solely as an artist, and she continues to hold down a day job.

That's why she considers being accepted into the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair a dream come true—especially since this was the first year she applied. "I've heard of people who try for years and never get into the Ann Arbor fair," she explains. "What an honor this is!" She's hoping that the fair will do for her what it has done for so many artists in its forty-year history: expand her audience to the point that she'll be able to do her art full time.

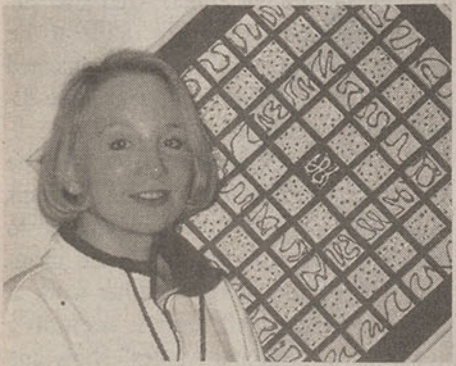
Candy Borowski

The art of the slab roller



Candy Borowski came home late one night in 1979 so excited about a pottery class she'd just attended that she woke up her two daughters to share the news. "This is something I'll do for the rest of my life!" she told them.

Borowski, a Rochester Hills resident, went on to take a year's worth of classes at Oakland Community College. Soon afterward she assembled a home studio complete with electric kiln and combined her pottery with full-time homemaking.

Since then Borowski, fifty-two, has been largely self taught. She makes flat, earth-toned ceramic wall hangings ranging from eight-by-ten-inch plaques to multisection works a yard or more wide. Although her first brush with clay involved "throwing" on a potter's wheel, Borowski didn't like circular and functional forms and began altering her works into more irregular shapes once they were off the wheel. She eventually abandoned throwing entirely in favor of hand building with clay slabs, a more direct means of achieving the irregular designs she prefers. She uses a slab roller, a long table with a heavy cylinder mounted across its width. This roller, cranked along a track, mashes clay on the table into a smooth slab of uniform thickness.

For texture, she may press objects such as lace into the surface. Applying pigments over stencils she's cut from sheets of plastic, she adds rows of abstract squig-gles, diamonds, and tadpole shapes that she calls "hieroglyphs." The pieces' unfinished edges (cracked from rolling), repetitive designs, and cool colors of beige, slate, rose, white, and black produce a low-key, decorative effect. After two firings in the kiln, they are ready to be mounted on a piece of glass and attached to a frame, forming an abstract three-dimensional work.

Borowski spent a dozen years on the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans waiting list before getting a chance to show her work in Ann Arbor. In the meantime she has shown and sold her work at various regional art shows, including Rochester's "Arts and Apples" show and Wyandotte's Street Art Fair. She says that showgoers viewing her works "either loved them or hated them; I could tell the moment they approached the booth."

Borowski normally displays pieces ranging in price from $45 to $400. For those who'd like a larger, custom-made hanging, she has glaze samples and photographs of examples. Some of her own favorites, though, are much smaller: slabs that she cuts into two-by-two-inch tiles, which she then reglues onto glass. A friend of Borowski's calls them "appetizers." You can see them in her booth in the Guild section of the Art Fair on South State Street.

Jewelry Maker

Jill Elizabeth

High-tech icons

Jill Elizabeth draws on an eclectic mix of ancient symbols and myths to design her whimsical pins and earrings.

"I am a proponent of the idea that there is nothing new under the sun," Elizabeth says. By combining contemporary material with ancient Egyptian, Celtic, and Native American imagery, she says, she's "found a way to incorporate my childhood love of the ancient past with contemporary fashion."

Elizabeth, forty-eight, makes jewelry from an architectural laminate called mirrored chrome—a mirror substitute more commonly used in the ceilings of hotel lobbies. She cuts out forms that she then adorns with antique glass beads and stones strung through copper-based magnet wire. The chrome reflects the bright colors of the glass beads and stones, creating a dazzling, cheerful effect.

Elizabeth studied metalworking in college but couldn't afford to invest in expensive tools. She made beaded jewelry but without much financial success. She says she was just about to give up and "go back to being a waitress for the rest of my life" when she was given a box of the mirrored chrome at a 1985 trade show in New York City.

A follower of the Eckankar religion, Elizabeth describes a "voice" calling her to use the unlikely material. Even so, it sat in her studio for months before she figured out how to use it in jewelry. Today, she says that she considers her work to be her "spiritual practice."

Followers of Eckankar believe that there have been many teachers of divine wisdom since ancient times, so it seems natural that Elizabeth would borrow from so many different religious sources for her pieces. "I'd like to offer people keys to the doorway that opens the way to the soul—with a lot of added fun in between," she says. Many of her designs borrow from symbols of healing and regeneration such as the Egyptian Eye of Horus and the Babylonian Tree of Life.

Based with her husband, Scott MacLaren, in East Stroudsburg, a town in northeast Pennsylvania, Elizabeth is within easy driving distance of all the major shows in the East—New York, D.C., Baltimore, and Philadelphia. But friends kept urging her to show in Ann Arbor.

"I knew it was the granddaddy of all shows," said Elizabeth. "But it was just too far away. I have what I call my 'rule of bum'—my bum doesn't like to be in a car more than five hours one way."

But fellow artists warned Elizabeth that she would have to spend about seven years on the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans waiting list before getting a booth in the summer fair. So Elizabeth signed up—and waited. "I have been waiting for twelve years, which is almost as long as I've been doing this art," says Elizabeth wryly. "But it's just as well they didn't invite me in the early days, because I wouldn't have had a vehicle that would have gotten me there!"

salmon," he explained recently by phone from his home in central Florida. "Scenic photography is trees and a river—and a bear with a salmon."

Richmond was quick to add that although his photographs are decidedly "scenic," he doesn't do the "bear with salmon" part. Instead, he creates softly colored seascapes and landscapes from places around the world that he's grown to love: Spain, Portugal, Florida, the Carolinas, Michigan. Lately, he's been exploring the Portuguese island of Madeira.

Richmond applied to the Ann Arbor fairs for eight years before finally winning a spot in this year's State Street Area Art Fair. "Everybody has one place they have to do before they die," he laughs. "Ann Arbor is it for me."

As a kid, Richmond "lived in" his uncle's copies of National Geographic. Eventually he taught himself how to take pictures, and when he wasn't busy running a marina and charter-fishing business in the Florida Keys, he was out with his camera. He started as a nature photographer but "got tired of harassing the wildlife" and moved into scenic work.

Richmond's color images range in size from sixteen by twenty inches to two by four feet (big enough to hang above a king-size bed, he notes) and in price from $65 to $650, depending on the frame. He develops, prints, mats, and frames each work himself. All of his images have a matte finish and a painterly quality that results from his gently understated palette and technique. "These are definitely not man's-conflict-with-man pictures," he says. Viewers most often describe them as "peaceful."

Richmond, forty-eight, has been a full-time photographer for the past eleven years. He points out, though, that as romantic as the job may sound, it requires fifteen-hour days when he's on location. He generally shoots between 6:30 and 10 in the morning, and again from 4 in the afternoon until sunset. "I chase light," he explains. "Once I have a subject, then I have to work the light."

Between shoots, he searches for new locations. "We look and look and look." Asked whom he means when he says "we," Richmond pauses for a long time. "That's God and me," he volunteers at last. "I always include God wherever I go. I don't pound the Bible, that's just how I feel."

Over the years, he's drawn inspiration from the paintings of Georgia O'Keeffe and the photographs of Eliot Porter, John Shaw, and Pat O'Hara. "I always want to do my own thing," he says, "to find something that other people aren't doing."

Richmond acknowledges the need to come up with salable images. "Let's make money, man. I got a kid in college," he laughs. But ultimately, sales aren't what drives him. James Richmond, former marina manager, onetime nature photographer, practical joker, admits that his work is a matter of the heart. "I do this because I love doing what I do."

Wood Turner
Chris Zema
"I let the wood decide"

Wood turner Chris Zema credits an accident with helping him make the leap of faith to produce and sell his artwork full time. A carpenter by trade, Zema suffered a shoulder injury on the job in the early 1990s and found himself unable to work steadily. So he began selling some of the wooden bowls, vases, and art objects he had been making as a hobby.

At his first art fair, in Naples, New York, he sold out of almost every item on the first day. "We had to come home and scrounge around for things to sell on the second day," Zema recalls. At his next art fair, in Rochester, a Kodak representative bought every piece of inlaid artwork.

That was when he realized he could support himself with what he had thought of as just a deeply satisfying hobby. "I never went back to work," Zema says. Though he typically does about twenty shows a year now, this is his first appearance in Ann Arbor.

Zema works with wood from burls, which is prized among carpenters because of its exceptionally beautiful grain and color. The rare, abnormal growths on trees that result in burls are accidents of nature, and scientists still don't know what causes them. Zema employs a personal nationwide network of loggers to keep him in good supply.

Zema is self taught as an artistic wood turner, but he learned to use a lathe when he was a part-time machinist's apprentice for about ten years in Hornell, New York. He mounts a burl in the lathe, straps on wrist tools, and slowly removes small amounts of wood from both inside and outside surfaces to reveal grain and color.

"I let [each] piece take the natural shape of the wood," Zema explains. "Everything I make is one of a kind. . . . I let the wood decide."

Many times as the piece becomes thinner, small radial cracks will appear in the grain. Some wood turners use glue to fill these cracks, but Zema says, "I couldn't stand the smell of glue. . . . I got into inlaying because of this annoyance."

> Zema mounts a burl in the lathe, straps on wrist tools, and slowly removes small amounts of wood from both inside and outside surfaces to reveal grain and color.

He began grinding turquoise into a fine power and mixing it into a liquid, and eventually found a consistency that would allow him to insert it in the cracks. The inlaid stone effectively glues the cracks and strengthens the piece while adding beauty and distinction. Sometimes Zema will let the inlay just follow the natural cracks. Other times he will use finer and finer drills to create a shape, like flowers or an arrowhead. In addition to turquoise, Zema also inlays mother of pearl, malachite, abalone shell, and pink coral.

With his work going for prices ranging from $50 to $2,000, Zema now makes more money as an artist than he did as a carpenter. He also works a lot harder, spending up to fifteen hours a day in his studio. But, says Zema, "I'm lucky enough to love what I do."

The non-profit Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, the original juried fair, located in the South University area, has been ranked the number one fine art fair and the number one fine craft fair in the nation by the National Association of Independent Artists (NAIA) and by Sunshine Artists magazine. The award winning Ann Arbor Street Art Fair each year selects 200 artists from nearly 2000 applicants, with 89 new artists invited for the 2000 fair. Artists are selected through the nation's most rigorous jury process. And again in 2000, the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair was recognized as the highest quality outdoor show in the country by the NAIA.

IN ADDITION TO THE FABULOUS VISUAL ARTS DISPLAY, FAIRGOERS WILL ENJOY:

- Street performers like the world famous boogie-woogie piano player Mr. B, plus dozens more
- Artist demonstrations at artist booths and the Potters Guild
- Artful Kid Zone art activities for the family each day from 10 am until 4 pm on Church St., north of South University
- Selected family entertainment between 4 and 5 pm at the Artful Kid Zone
- Create a Difference!, featuring Arts for All adaptive art equipment for fair goers using wheelchairs and non-chair users alike at the Artful Kid Zone
- Souvenirs like T-shirts, bandanas, hats & tote bags featuring the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair logo

Dedicated to the visual arts through connecting the finest artists from across the country with a knowledgeable and appreciative audience, the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair also awards scholarships to visual art students at area colleges and universities, places art in public buildings, and is a major supporter of the South University Area Association.

A broad base of community support from individuals, local businesses and organizations, city government, educational institutions, and other area non-profits is essential to our success.

The 41st annual Ann Arbor Street Art Fair recognizes and thanks these individuals and groups for their support: the artists, the jurors, the many wonderful & knowledgeable individuals who staff the Information Booths and

THE ORIGINAL FAIR ON SOUTH U

Since 1960, the original Ann Arbor art fair has evolved into one of the nation's premier fine arts events. The smallest and most selective of Ann Arbor's three simultaneous fairs, it attracts serious collectors and representatives from major art galleries around the country. Begun with fewer than 100 local artists, it now draws approximately 2,000 applications each year for its 200 exhibit spaces. (An additional thirteen ceramists from the Ann Arbor Potters Guild won places through a separate jurying process.)

The Place: The Ann Arbor Street Art Fair takes place on South University Avenue from Washtenaw to Tappan, and on East University Avenue between Willard and the University of Michigan campus, with a small section on Church Street.

Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, Inc.: This nonprofit organization is governed by a nineteen-member board of directors that includes South University businesspeople and Ann Arbor artists and townspeople. For information about exhibitors or about the 2001 fair, July 18–21, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, Box 1352, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106, or call (734) 994–5260. (Applications are due in early February 2001.) Website: www.artfair.org

Prizes: On the first day of the fair, Wednesday, July 19, two jurors will select ten exhibits of exceptionally high quality and originality to receive $300 cash awards and a travel voucher courtesy of United Airlines. Look for the ribbons in the artists' booths on Thursday.

Artist Demonstrations: Thirteen artists, along with members of the Potters Guild, will be demonstrating their craft at their booths. See the box on p. 25 or check the list of schedules and locations posted near the information booth on the corner of South University and East University and on signs posted throughout the fair.

Art Activities: Young and old can try their hands at artistic expression at the Artful Kid Zone on Church north of South University from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day. Sponsored by Farmer Jack and staffed by teachers from the Michigan Art Education Association, the booth features free art activities designed for the whole family. From 5 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, the Create A Difference project gives artists of all abilities the chance to help create a mural using wheelchairs with specially designed paint roller equipment. The project is sponsored by the Washtenaw Intermediate School District; Ann Arbor Street Fair, Inc.; and Very Special Arts, a nationwide organization that gives people with disabilities the opportunity to create art and educates the community about disabilities through art.

Information Booths: Can't find your favorite Ann Arbor Street Art Fair artist? Ask the volunteers at one of the fair's two information booths on South University: the familiar one at the corner of East University, and a satellite location at the corner of Tappan.

Merchandise Booths: Posters, T-shirts, and hats are on sale at two booths, one across the street from the East University information booth, the other on the corner of South University and Church.

Emergency First Aid: A first aid tent near the corner of South University and Tappan provides emergency first aid, including water and ice packs for heat stress.

Ann Arbor CB & Emergency Radio Team: Volunteers from the Ann Arbor CB & Emergency Radio Team patrol the fair, helping to find lost children and relaying information to fair organizers on everything from crowd problems to weather. The team's headquarters are just north of the intersection of South University and East University.

Live Music and Entertainment: Boogie-woogie pianist Mark "Mr. B" Braun celebrates his twenty-first year at the fair at his usual spot on the corner of South University and East University. A variety of artists perform on other stages at each end of the fair. At the Artful Kid Zone, there will be special family-oriented performances each day of the fair from 4 to 5 p.m. For details, see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 65.

Live Broadcasts: WKQI (95.5 FM), the fair's official FM radio sponsor, broadcasts live from South University near Washtenaw starting at 3 p.m. Wed.–Fri. and at 11 a.m. on Sat. WQKL (107.1 FM) broadcasts live from

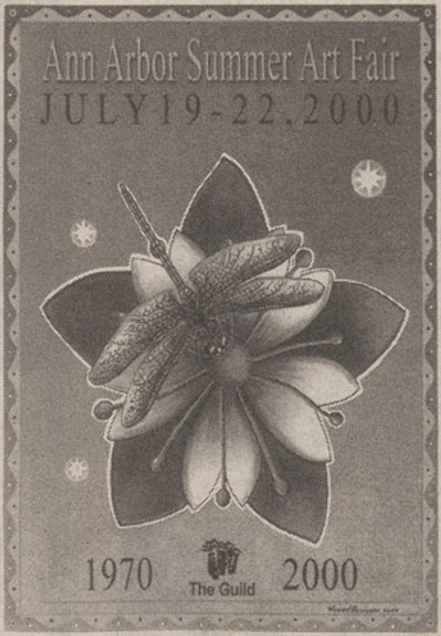
ANN ARBOR SUMMER ART FAIR™



Presented by The Michigan Guild of Artists & Artisans

30TH ANNUAL CELEBRATION OF ART

The Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair, organized by The Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, is proud to celebrate 30 years of presenting the nation's best in fine arts to the Ann Arbor community. With more than 1100 members who donate their time and energies to the promotion of visual arts in the U.S., The Guild has selected over 540 artists from 37 states to show their work at this award-winning event. Drawing from such a talented pool, the Summer Art Fair represents the largest and most diverse range of art shown at the Ann Arbor Art Fairs. In addition to the spectacular array of artwork on display, the Summer Art Fair also encourages its guests to enjoy the lively, family-oriented entertainment and festivities that take place around the Fair. The Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair and The Michigan Guild would like to recognize the City of Ann Arbor and the Main Street Area Association for their help and support. We would also like to extend a special thanks to all of the volunteers who have given their time and efforts toward making this such an outstanding event, year after year.

SUMMER ART FAIR

(Downtown Section)

FROM FINE ART TO FOLK ART

With more than 540 exhibitors, the Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair is the largest of the three fairs. It includes a wide selection of fine art and crafts, everything from painting and glass to fiber arts and clay, at an equally wide range of prices. The exhibitor roster remains relatively stable from year to year (about thirty to forty new artists are added per year), and many loyal customers return each summer to seek out their favorite artists.

The Place: The Summer Art Fair is the only fair with two separate locations: the campus section (booths C1–C314) is on State Street from South University to William; the downtown section (booths D315–D540) is on Main Street from William to Huron, and on Liberty Street from Ashley to Fifth Avenue.

Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans: This nonprofit organization was created in 1971 to manage the free art fair that had sprung up the year before on the University of Michigan Diag. The Guild now boasts 1,200 members, making the Summer Art Fair the only Ann Arbor fair sponsored by the artists themselves. Booths are open to Guild members only, and exhibition privileges are so coveted that members may spend eight years on the waiting list before being offered a space. Artists are juried by a panel of five Guild members and five outside jurors.

For information about exhibitors, membership, or the 2001 fair, July 18–21, write to the Guild at 118 North Fourth Avenue, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104, or call (734) 662–3382. Website: www.michiganguild.org E-mail: guild@michiganguild.org

Artist Showcase: Michigan Guild artists will be demonstrating their work on East Liberty between Main and Fourth Avenue (see box, p. 39, for schedule).

Imagination Station: This booth features free art activities designed for children, but fairgoers of all ages are welcome to try their hand at artistic expression. Post Office Plaza, East Liberty at Fifth Avenue, Wed.–Fri. 11 a.m.–6 p.m., Sat. 11 a.m.–5 p.m.

Summer Art Fair Print Tent: This new booth sells affordable lithograph reproductions of original artwork by Michigan Guild artists. Go to one of the information booths for a complete list of participating artists.

Information Booths: Guild booths on State in front of the University of Michigan Museum of Art (campus section) and on Main at Liberty (downtown section) offer friendly assistance of all kinds.

Merchandise Booths: You can buy 2000 Summer Art Fair visors, T-shirts, posters, and canvas bags at either of two booths: at State Street at South University (campus section) or at Main and Liberty (downtown section). This year, the Guild is celebrating 30 artful years with a commemorative limited edition Art Fair poster.

Ann Arbor Police Department: Police personnel will be at a booth on Main Street at Liberty to help you find your way, your child, or your belongings. They will also discuss child safety seat issues and demonstrate a 911 simulator to teach kids what to do in case of an emergency. Special units, including K-9 and motorcycles, will be on hand, and there will be plenty of educational and fun giveaways.

Live Music and Entertainment: There is a performance area at Liberty and Main. For details and performance schedules, see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 65.

Main Street Food Court: Local restaurants and visiting vendors sell food and drinks at this food court on West Liberty between Main and Ashley. Opens at 10 a.m. each day of the fair; seating provided. See Food at the Fair, p. 73.

Michigan Union Food Court: When's the last time you had souvlaki, buffalo, or an "elephant ear"? Last year's fair, maybe? Those outdoor vendors are back, selling ethnic food and American favorites. You'll find their colorful tents and exotic aromas in the usual spot between the Michigan Union and the LS&A Building. The court opens at 10:30 a.m. each day of the fair. See Food at the Fair, p. 73.

Michigan Union: Tired fairgoers can relax in cool, comfortable rest areas and refuel in the basement food court. Wed. & Thurs. 7 a.m.–midnight, Fri. & Sat. 7 a.m.–2 a.m.

SUMMER

University of Michigan Museum of Art: At the corner of State and North University, the air-conditioned museum is open for extended hours during the fair (Wed.–Fri. 10 a.m.–9 p.m., Sat. 10 a.m.–6 p.m.). Admission is free (donations are welcome). The museum gift shop moves outside during the fair, selling discounted cards, posters, books, games, jewelry, and other handicrafts. Inside the museum visitors can enjoy music, hear a guest artist or expert during the "Gallery Talk" each day at 3 p.m., or participate in a variety of other drop-in activities Wed.–Sat. 1–4 p.m.

Nonprofit Organization Booths: At booths on East Liberty between Fifth Avenue and Division, representatives from more than fifty local organizations pass out literature and talk about everything from religion to rescuing greyhounds.

Main Street Area Association: The association sells T-shirts and souvenirs and provides information about downtown Ann Arbor at its booth at Liberty and Main.

Live Broadcasts: WWJ (950 AM) broadcasts from the corner of Main and Huron.

Community Television Network (cable channels 16, 17, 18 & 19): Anyone can be on television! Videotape your greeting for free. Just stop by the CTN booths at the corner of Fifth Avenue and East Liberty during fair hours. These mini-interviews with happy fairgoers will be telecast locally on channel 16 for weeks after the fairs.

The University of Michigan museum of art

This summer, the University of Michigan Museum of Art celebrates the richness and vitality of America's craftspeople with two exhibitions that brim with bold color, fascinating patterns, and bristling originality:

The White House Collection of American Crafts
through October 22

Amish Quilts 1880 to 1940 from the Collection of Faith and Stephen Brown through September 10

Visit UMMA during the Art Fairs! Admission is free; we're matching Fair hours. Come wander our air-conditioned galleries and take home memories of Monet, Whistler, rare Asian and African art, and much more. So take a break from the "Art Fair shuffle" and come to where art lives all year round.

Daily Art Fair events
1–3 pm: Light classical and jazz piano and songs
3 pm: Gallery Talk by a different artist or art expert each day
1–4 pm: Family Walk—a self-guided tour of the crafts and quilts exhibitions featuring hands-on activities.

Add a little color to your life

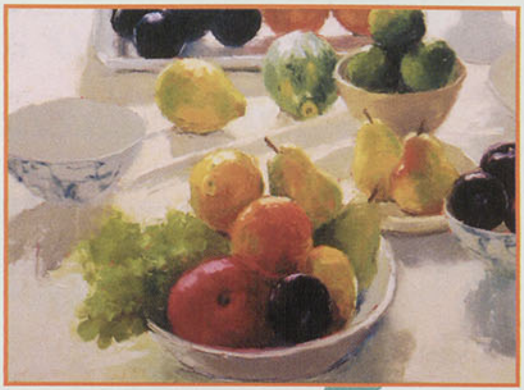
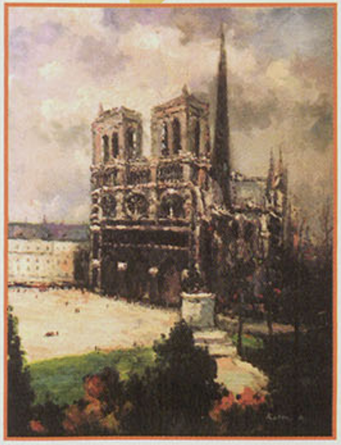
From antique oil paintings to vibrant pastels and watercolors, from religious and spiritual to the lighthearted and playful, from wild life to still life, the Ave Maria Fine Art Gallery features an eclectic selection of paintings, photography, fine prints and poster reproductions by talented artists from all over the world.



The Chapel Collection

A beautiful display of religious art will transport you into the 18th century. A special feature on display is a magnificent 130-year-old micromosaic of Christ by Ennico Podiodi.



Our Featured Artist

The colorful works of local artist Nancy Schaff are now on display at the Ave Maria Fine Art Gallery. Her canvases of still lifes and florals, featuring large pastels, explode with bright splashes of primary colors. Call (877) 283-6278 for further information. Proceeds from the sale of artwork are used to support scholarships to Ave Maria College.

STATE STREET AREA ART FAIR

Cynthia Chuang, jewelry

SMART AND SOPHISTICATED

This fair was organized in 1968 by a group of merchants and businesspeople on the northwest edges of the University of Michigan campus. They saw the four-day explosion of business on South University during the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, and they wanted to find a way to lure those same thousands of hungry, thirsty, sophisticated, and curious visitors past their storefronts as well.

The State Street Area Art Fair (SSAAF) has made a niche of its own. Aggressively juried throughout most of its thirty-three years, it vies for many of the same top artists as the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair; an artist who appeared in one fair last year is likely to show up this year in the other. With over 330 exhibitors, well over a third of the participants are new this year. (An additional twenty-six artists exhibit their work at the Ann Arbor Fiber Arts Guild booth through a separate jurying process.)

The Place: "Area" is the key word in this fair's name. Only a handful of SSAAF artists set up on State Street itself. The rest are located on Maynard, East Liberty, Thompson, William, and North University. The big line of booths on State Street south of William is actually the campus section of the Summer Art Fair.

State Street Area Association: This nonprofit organization of merchants and businesspeople promotes the north-of-campus shopping district. For information on the 2001 fair, July 18–21, or for artists' addresses and phone numbers, write to the State Street Area Art Fair, Box 7469, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48107, or call (734) 663–6511.

Prizes and Purchase Awards: This fair awards two $700 best-of-show cash awards (one for two-dimensional works and one for three-dimensional) and eight $175 honorable-mention prizes. The winners' names will be posted at the main information booth on State Street at East Liberty on Thursday.

State Street Area Art Fair Print Tent: This booth on State at William sells affordable lithograph reproductions of original artwork by SSAAF artists. Go to one of the information booths for a complete list of participating artists.

Information Booths: Volunteers answer questions and sell T-shirts, posters, and postcards. There are three booths, at State and East Liberty, at State and William, and at Liberty and Division.

Electronic "Art Fair Postcards": Fairgoers can pose in wild and wacky Art Fair scenes and send the picture as an electronic postcard to anyone with Internet access. Postcards are sent from a booth in front of the offices of Michigan Live, at the corner of East Liberty and Division streets (across from Liberty Plaza).

First Aid Station: Staffed by paramedics from the Ann Arbor Fire Department, the first aid station is at Liberty and Division.

Children's Activities: On East Liberty, Fire Safety Sammy will be on hand to teach kids about fire safety. (Look for the big red bus.) The Children's Fire Safety Area features a variety of free interactive displays and is open the same hours as the fair.

Live Music and Entertainment: There are two performance locations: Liberty Plaza, on the corner of East Liberty and South Division (produced by WIQB), and State Street near East Washington. For schedules, see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 65.

Michigan Theater: This ornate movie house on East Liberty operates a "beer garden" featuring cold beer, bratwurst, snacks, and air-conditioning for weary fairgoers Wed.–Sat. 11 a.m.–9 p.m. The theater sells movie posters, T-shirts, and other film memorabilia at a booth outside the theater, and presents art and foreign films in the evenings (see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 65). You can also buy snow cones at a booth outside the nearby State Theater at East Liberty and State.

Live Broadcasts: WIQB (102.9 FM) broadcasts throughout the fair.

Herb David Guitar Studio: This studio-and-store on East Liberty at Fifth Avenue presents its popular porch performances again this year at various times throughout the fair.

Nonprofit Organization Booths: Representatives from more than fifty local organizations are at booths on East Liberty between UNIQUELY AMERICAN.

Stickley

Inspired by the Arts & Crafts movement. Gustav Stickley put aside the excesses of decoration and made furniture that was simple, strong and handsome. He was unique in his time, a rebel, but with the Mission Oak Collection, he built something that would endure.

Now special values offered during our Summer Sale.

"The Taming of Shakespeare's Shrew": The Brass Tacks Ensemble (Performance Network Tree-Town Theater Festival). July 20–23 & 27–30. James Ingagiola directs an offbeat, play-within-a-play production of Shakespeare's earthy comedy about the battle of the sexes. The action centers on a wealthy merchant's efforts to arrange the marriage of his feisty, violent-tempered daughter. With one of Shakespeare's most absorbingly suspenseful plots, The Taming of the Shrew also features amazing exploits, lots of high-spirited impersonations, sharp wits, and even sharper tongues. 8 p.m., Performance Network, 408 W. Washington. Tickets $12 (students & seniors, $9; Thurs., whatever you can afford to pay) in advance by reservation and at the door. 663–0681.

"Patlabor": The Underworld's "Anime Night." Sci-fi action thriller in which giant robots battle each other in the streets of Tokyo. 9 p.m., the Underworld, 1202 South University. Free. 998–0547.

Frank Morgan: Bird of Paradise. July 20–22. This New York City–based alto saxophonist plays a sweet, hot brand of classic bebop. A protege of Charlie Parker who spent almost 30 years in and out of prison for heroin addiction, Morgan has released several acclaimed LPs since he kicked his habit in the mid-80s. He is backed by the Ron Brooks Trio, an ensemble led by bassist (and Bird of Paradise owner) Ron Brooks and featuring pianist Rick Roe and drummer Pete Siers. 9:30 p.m.–1:30 a.m., Bird of Paradise, 312 S. Main. $20 at the door only. 662–8310.

Henry VI, Parts I, II, & III* and *Richard III

Cycle 1: Saturday, March 10 & Sunday, March 11
Cylce 2: Saturday, March 17 & Sunday, March 18
Power Center • Ann Arbor

Don't miss this rare opportunity to see Britain's Royal Shakespeare Company. Directed by RSC Associate Director Michael Boyd, the Royal Shakespeare Company will recreate a rare theatrical experience when four of Shakespeare's History Plays are presented in one location, at one time in their entirety. Only to be performed in Ann Arbor and RSC's home Stratford-upon-Avon, the 30 member company will take you and their characters on a momentous journey through 60 years of England's bloody and most turbulent history.

The Royal Shakespeare Company is a co-presentation of the University Musical Society and the University of Michigan with additional support from media sponsor Michigan Radio.

Northside's Video Project With GM and Ewald Motion Pictures

Students at Northside had the unique learning opportunity to be interviewed by a camera crew from Ewald Motion Pictures, Inc for a three-minute video clip that will be used by General Motors to drive home the immense impact that the Internet will have on the way we work and live. The interviews captured Northside students' responses to a series of simple questions about technology and computers in their school and homes. The segment will be shown at various gatherings of GM employees, dealers, and dealership employees. The children talked about the Internet—what they know about it, what it is, how they use it, and their favorite websites.

Big Brothers...Big Sisters of Washtenaw Country

Did you know...Big Brothers Big Sisters of Washtenaw County, a program of HelpSource, has been in the area since 1991? It is a small but rapidly growing program. Big Brothers Big Sisters of Washtenaw County currently has 60 matches with area children and adult volunteers. Once matched, children and volunteers spend a couple hours together each week. Big Brothers Big Sisters is currently looking for children, particularly girls, for a college program next fall. This program uses student volunteers from area colleges. Need more information? Tappan Teacher Receives Law Day Award

The Michigan Lawyers Auxiliary and State Bar of Michigan have named Wendy Raymond of Tappan Middle School as the Law Related Education Teacher of the Year. Ms. Raymond was nominated for the award by Ann Arbor attorney Anthony Patti (Hooper, Hathaway, Price, Beuche & Wallace), who has worked with Ms. Raymond and her sixth grade students for six years in a lawyer/teacher partnership.

The Lawyer/Teacher Partnership in the Ann Arbor area was originally co-sponsored by the Washtenaw County Bar Association and the Ann Arbor Public Schools. Mr. Patti met with each of Raymond's four language arts classes to have a question-and-answer session regarding law, the courts, and what lawyers do for a living. Civic and historical aspects of the law are emphasized, as well as linguistic aspects of legal vocabulary.

Students conducted a mock trial based upon the events that occur in the novel TUCK EVERLASTING by Natalie Babbitt. During the mock trial, the students learn about courtroom protocol, including how to address the court, grounds for raising objections during the case, and courtroom terminology.

Coach Of The Year

Tom Pullen was named Midwest Region 4 Girls Tennis Coach of the year. Region 4 consists of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, and Wisconsin. He is one of eight finalists for the National Coach of the Year Award. Tom was named by the National Federation Coaches Association as Boys Tennis Coach of the Year for 2000, for Michigan.

Clemente Students Learn From The Pros At Purple Rose Theatre

Sixteen high school students stand restlessly in a circle in the media center. One at a time, they sputter out, "The big black bug bit the big black bear and made the big black bear bleed blood." Hoots, applause and laughter prevail as each trips over some part of the tongue twister. In the center stands actress Michele Mountain. She is smiling, dynamic, and encouraging. "Again, faster," she urges one. "Wonderful," she praises another. "Slow down, ma'am!" she exhorts a third.

The Purple Rose Theatre's program was made possible by grants from the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs and the MONY Foundation in New York City. Students spend three hours per day, five days a week, receiving training in theatre arts under the direction of Guy Sanville, Artistic Director of the Theatre, and teachers Nancy Dewold and Lexy Lyons. Students are selected for the program by interview. Each had to agree to stringent attendance policies.

For their fifteen hours a week, the students receive credit in three subjects they select from English, speech, drama, theatre arts, or physical education. The artists teach the students that an actor uses his own personal experiences and emotional understanding of his character to "become" that character. The students must take risks to achieve this. Watching the students perform monologues they've written demonstrates the depths to which they must introspect, and the heights to which they must stretch to express what they find inside themselves.

For information on these, or any other program of the Ann Arbor Public Schools, please contact Dr. Deb Small, Executive Director for Community Relations, at 734-994-2236. (Ad design by Wendy Everett)

Cousins Heritage Inn

Because Sometimes the Best Way to Enjoy the Art Fair Is to Get Away From It

The booths, the crowds, the heat . . . sure, it's fun. But when you're hungry and ready to relax, the last thing you want is to wait 45 minutes for a seat. Reserve your table for a leisurely dinner at Cousins. Just ten minutes away from the crowds, you can enjoy appetizers like Venison Pate and House Smoked Salmon. Entrees like Brace of Quail with Dried Cherry Sauce and Roasted Veal Chops with Shiitake Mushrooms. And desserts like our house-made ice creams, fresh fruit tarts, and Triple Chocolate Decadence. A delightfully different menu every other week.

Places to eat, from Argiero's to Zanzibar

How many art galleries do you know of in which a child can walk around with a dripping ice cream cone? And when was the last time you admired a painting, pontificating about its use of contrasting textures to create a sense of discord, while at the same time sucking pizza grease off your fingers?

Well, in mid-July in Ann Arbor—when eat is the only three-letter word that competes with art—it could happen to you. While your eyes feast on the vast visual variety, don't forget about your tongue. During the Ann Arbor Art Fairs, local restaurants go all out to provide that fickle muscle in your mouth with everything it could possibly desire.

The following restaurants and temporary food courts are all within four blocks of the fairs. Restaurants are arranged in alphabetical order by neighborhood, with each restaurant's name followed by coordinates referring to its location on the map on pp. 74 and 75. For instance, D2 in the listing for Argiero's means that Argiero's can be found at the intersection of column D and row 2.

Absolutely Free of undesired hair
with LightSheer™ by Coherent

Until recently, the war against undesired hair was waged by shaving, waxing, and tweezing with poor results. Well, the Advanced Laser Centers have a new secret weapon ... it's called LightSheer!

This high tech laser is so fast it can treat 500 hair follicles per second ... and ... it does it comfortably ... with a patented cooling tip ... and quickly ... so you can spend your time enjoying life.

So, call today for your personal consultation, then experience the freedom of ...

Smooth, hair free skin!
